

Please read the following information before completing the ASB Case Review request:

What is a ASB case review?

The ASB Case Review gives victims and communities the right to request a formal review of their case when they believe that they have had no response, or an unsatisfactory response to their complaint of anti-social behaviour. The ASB Case Review is activated where the locally determined threshold is met. The process provides victims of persistent anti-social behaviour with the opportunity to express how the anti-social behaviour has impacted their lives, to provide them an understanding of what is being done to help and what can further be done to help in seeking a resolution.

What is the threshold for a ASB case review?

- Reported anti-social behaviour to the qualifying agencies (council, police and/or a housing association, also known as registered providers) three times about separate incidents in the last six months and where no effective action has been taken.
- Each report must be made to either the council, police, or registered housing provider within one month of it taking place and all incidents reported must have taken place in the last 6 months.
- The anti-social behaviour has persisted and there has been either no, or an inadequate response from agencies.

When can you expect a response?

- You will receive an acknowledgement to confirm receipt of your submitted ASB Case Review request within 5 working days.
 - You may be contacted by a member of the team should there be any missing information or should we require any clarification.
 - If threshold was not met, you will be contacted in writing to confirm the reason/s why and to provide you with the opportunity to discuss the matter further.
 - If threshold is met, a panel meeting will be organised with all relevant agencies and professionals to allow for the ASB Case Review to be reviewed and for recommendations to be made.
