

Matter 1
Issues and Questions

6. The straight answer would be no.
The UDP seems to me a very clear document. On one side is the policy and the other the London Plan Policies, SPGs and SPDs etc connected to that policy.

Appendix B. Transition from Adopted 'Plan for the Environment (UDP) policies and SPG 2004 to Local Development Documents 2007-2013

For instance where is Urban Design in the Core Strategy.
I am absolutely unclear where policies in Chapter 4 of the UDP 4.1-4.9 will be in the Core Strategy, Development Sites or Development Management Documents? And what happens between now and 2013?

'Policies will be part superseded by Core Strategy in November 2011' will be part-what parts?

SPGs and SPDs. When will these be changed?

When I read the 'Summary of our Preferred Approach' for the Hounslow Core Strategy re Housing it seems absolutely clear what the Strategy is. The lay out of the Ealing LDF is confusing. Housing in Ealing is just covered by the London plan?