THE TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING
(FLOODING) (ENGLAND) DIRECTION 2007

1. Planning Policy Guidance Note 25: Development and Flood Risk (PPG25), which was published in 2001, set out policies regarding proposed development in flood risk areas. Despite the advice contained in PPG25, some inappropriate development in flood risk areas has been granted planning permission by local planning authorities, against advice from the Environment Agency. The Town and Country Planning (Floodling) (England) Direction 2007 (the Direction), introduces a new arrangement to act as a safeguard in such cases.

2. A recent review showed that PPG25 has succeeded in raising the profile of flooding matters in the planning process, that its core policies remain valid, but that more needs to be done to fully implement them. In response, a revised and strengthened Planning Policy Statement (PPS25), has been issued as part of the Government’s overall approach to managing future flood risks, set out in Making Space for Water\(^1\). PPS25 is focussed on core policies that are clearer and easier to understand. It clarifies the sequential test that matches types of development to degrees of flood risk and strengthens the requirement to include flood risk assessments at all levels of the planning process.

3. On 1 October 2006 the Environment Agency was made a statutory consultee for planning applications where flood risk is a key issue. The consultation requirement was introduced by Statutory Instrument 2006/2375\(^2\). Local planning authorities now have a duty to consult the Environment Agency on all applications for development in areas of flood risk or where critical drainage problems exist, other than minor development (as defined in the Statutory Instrument), and for development of sites of more than 1 hectare elsewhere.

4. The Direction, which is made under the Town and Country Planning (General Development Procedure) Order 1995 (Statutory Instrument 1995/419), comes into force on 1 January 2007. A copy of the Direction forms the annex to this Circular. The Direction requires a local planning authority to notify the Secretary of State of any application for major development in a flood risk area (as defined in the Direction), where it is minded to grant permission, against advice on flood risk grounds from the Environment Agency.

5. The Government considers that where a local planning authority is minded to approve an application for major development in a flood risk area, but the Environment Agency, after consultation, has objected on flood risk grounds, all parties (the local planning authority, the Environment Agency and the applicant), should as soon as practicable, discuss and agree the course of action which would need to be taken to enable the Environment Agency to withdraw its objection. The discussions should be commenced as soon as possible after the objection is made known by the Agency. There should be effective and on-going liaison between the parties, so that each is aware at all stages in the process, of the position of the others with regard to the application. The discussions are likely to be helped if the Agency sets out its reason(s) for objecting to the application, and the local planning authority/applicant set out their reason(s) for supporting it. If, following such discussions, the Environment Agency concludes that it is unable to withdraw its objection, it should advise the local planning authority of this as soon as possible.

6. Major development is:-

   • residential development, where the number of dwellings to be provided is 10 or more, or the site area is 0.5 hectares or more; or

   • non-residential development, where the new floorspace to be provided is 1,000 square metres or more, or the site area is 1 hectare or more.

7. A flood risk area is:-

   • land in an area within Flood Zones2 3 or 3; or

   • land in an area within Flood Zone 1 which has critical drainage problems and which has been notified to the local planning authority by the Environment Agency.

8. Where a local planning authority is minded to grant permission for major development in a flood risk area, despite there being an objection from the Environment Agency on flood risk grounds that it has not been able to withdraw, even after discussions with the local planning authority and the applicant, the Direction requires the local planning authority to notify the Secretary of State of the application. This provides the Secretary of State with an opportunity to check the application's general compliance with the policies in PPS25 and to consider whether it would be appropriate to call it in for determination. As part of this consideration the Secretary of State will wish to be assured that all reasonable steps have been taken by the local planning authority, the Environment Agency and the applicant through discussions, to examine ways in which the application might have been amended or further information provided to support it, which would have allowed the Environment Agency to withdraw its objection. In line with current policy, the Secretary of State will continue to be selective about calling in planning applications.
